

Let Him In

"Moooooom?" May was getting antsy. "When will Grandma and Grandpa be here?"

"They'll be here soon!" Mom giggled. "Just listen for a knock at the door."

"Hmmm," Dad sat up. "What if we heard the door knock and it was Jesus at the door? What would you do?"

"Jesus?" May thought a moment. "I'd be so happy to see Him here! I'd give Him a big hug and tell Him to come sit on the couch!"

"I'd be a little nervous," Auggie admitted. "What if He's upset about all the bad choices I've made?"

"I understand how you would feel," Mom rubbed Auggie's back. "There are a lot of people who admit to being embarrassed to meet Jesus."

"Although," Dad had something to add. "Even if you make bad choices, your mom and I love you very much. Jesus feels the same way we feel. There's a scripture in Revelation that talks about Jesus knocking at the door. It's up to us to open the door. We need to let Him in. Would you want Jesus to continue to stand at the door, waiting to come inside?"

"No," Auggie shook his head. "I would let Him in. I know He loves me. And I love Him."

"I like that answer," Dad smiled.

Just then there was a knock at the door. The kids ran to open it.
